Description

Public Remarks Perched at an elevation of 3,220 feet, this 22-acre mountaintop retreat is believed to be the highest residential home in South Carolina. Featuring breathtaking views that stretch across the horizon, this property embodies rustic charm and endless potential. Surrounded by national and state forests, as well as game lands, you can enjoy the serenity of nature while still being close to Brevard, North Carolina, and several cities in upstate South Carolina- the perfect balance between seclusion and convenience. The Wormy Chestnut cabin offers a romantic and tranquil getaway, with expansive views of the upstate lakes and distant mountains, covered and screened front porches, and wood-burning stone fireplaces in the living room and primary bedroom. With selective cutting, the views could be further expanded! Come experience the charm and potential of this extraordinary property. Schedule your showing today!
