Description

Discover the exquisite restoration of 34 Percy Street, a stunning 19th-century residence that embodies the rich architectural and historical heritage of Charleston. Once on the brink of demolition, this home was acquired in 2022, sparking a multi-year effort to revive its former glory. This remarkable residence features a beautiful facade that reflects its 19th-century origins, complemented by a thoughtfully designed yard, swimming pool, and pool house. A testament to how infill development can respect the past while meeting the needs of the future, making it a proud addition to Charleston's built environment. Appraised at $2.8m in January this home is priced to sell. Don't miss the opportunity to own a piece of Charleston's history, beautifully restored for contemporary living!The cohesive interior design has been crafted by Studio Maman Interiors, with Sarahglenn Boman and Rebecca Rumph ensuring that the space reflects Charleston's character while providing modern livability.
