Description

This property is located just outside of Andrews and has nearly half a mile of frontage on the scenic Black River. The tract is composed mostly of volunteer growth as the result of a 2018 timber cut. A well-maintained and sandy road system winds throughout the property, which allows for access to many points. The current owners take advantage of these long opening for hunting deer, which are abundant on the property. Much of the tract is low and retains water in winter months. These open branches and bays create excellent habitats for ducks. The property has no conservation easements and it neighbors other large family-owned tracts. It is just across the river from the Black River Cypress Preserve. Public river access is available by the property at Red's Landing. This is a fine opportunity to own a large, beautiful tract of land along the peaceful Black River which is a part of the new Black River State Park. Just off Highway 41, the tract provides easy access to Charleston, Myrtle Beach, and Florence, but feels worlds away.
